Student Profile:

As an educator, I wholeheartedly believe in continuous learning. Teaching is a process that changes as more research and evidence-based methodologies become apparent. It is my duty to be immersed in this process to ensure that my students are able to receive high-quality, research-based instruction. I teach students who are primarily underserved and marginalized. This population of students must have access to quality education in order for them to overcome barriers that will impede their learning processes. Through the TEACH grant, I am able to continue my education at the graduate level to learn and apply intensive, research-based, and high-quality instructional methods. As a mother of three children, the TEACH grant provides me this wonderful opportunity to assist with tuition costs, books, and materials. Additionally, I am able to teach my colleagues how to use new instructional strategies. The TEACH grant empowers teachers, such as myself, to continue learning, without the excessive burden of tuition cost. Teaching is my passion. I am grateful the TEACH grant has given me the opportunity to grow as an educator, while serving the most cherished elements of our society, our children.
